WW II MEMORIAL

“Uncommon Valor Was a Common Virtue”

Honoree Locator Matrix

November 11, 2007

Background

On Veterans Day, November 11, of 2005, the Library Park WW II Memorial was dedicated. It was a fine, late fall day. The speakers were top-notch, and the afternoon crowd was huge; completely filling 2nd Street and the south side of the Library grounds.

The benefactor's and designer's plan was simple—but elegant. A central monument would identify the memorial and honor those persons from the “local area” who were “Lost in WW II.” Surrounding the central monument would be a terrace constructed of inlaid bricks, most bearing the name and branch of service of those other local area citizen-honorees who served in uniform, helped America win the war, and survived the conflict. Collectively, all the honorees are members of “The Greatest Generation,” a term coined by journalist Tom Brokaw in his 1998 book of that title. On the north side of the terrace of bricks are five stone benches, one honoring each of the five uniformed services.

There are 98 names on a stone inlay on the north face of the central monument. There are 2,180 bricks with honoree names/service branches ... and there are two bricks inscribed, “Kilroy Was Here,” a phenomena of WW II GI's invention.

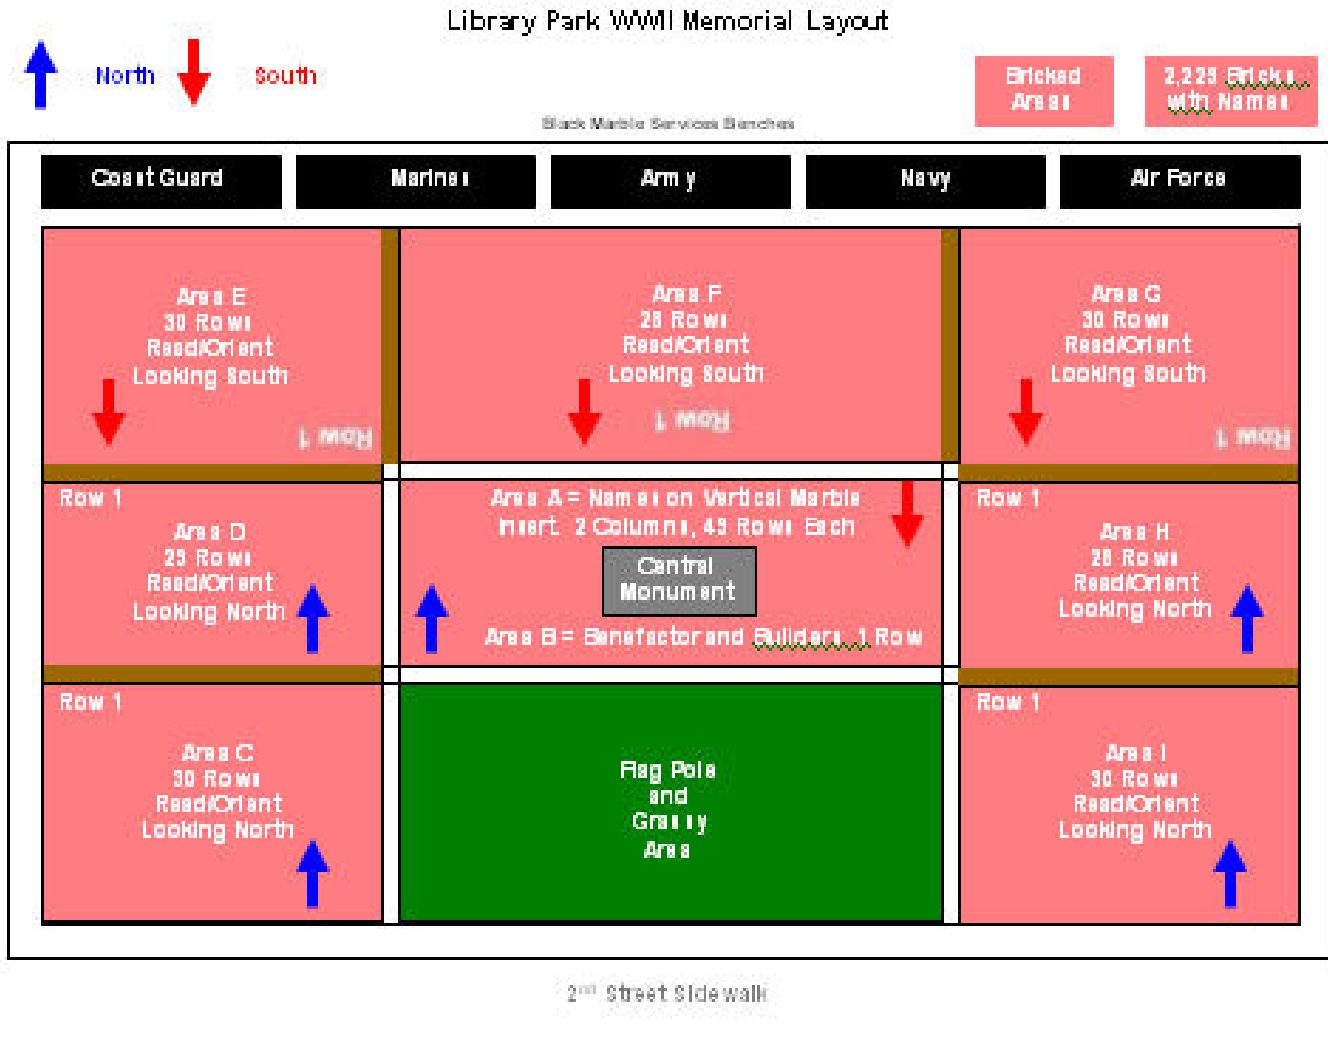

On the day of dedication, there were hundreds of folks admiring the memorial, both before and after the formal ceremony. Most of them were trying to find “their brick,” or “the brick” honoring their acquaintances, relatives, or loved ones.

That task, of finding a specific brick, could take some time, for it turns out the honoree bricks were laid in a rather random order. The purpose of this document ... is to solve that complication for future visitors to the Library Park WW II Memorial.

How to Use the Honoree Locator Matrix

There are two parts to this Honoree Locator Matrix. The first is a layout, or map, of the memorial that identifies nine distinct “areas” of the memorial that contain honoree names. “Area A,” is the stone insert on the north face of the central monument bearing the inscribed names of those veterans “Lost in WW II,” see diagram below.

“Area B” is the small area south of the central monument where are the bricks for the benefactor, and his two designer/builders, and, as well, a brick indicating the date of dedication.

“Areas C, D, E, F, G, H, and I contain the remainder of the honoree’s bricks. Note that to read the bricks, the viewer should be looking to the south in the top three areas, and looking to the north in all other areas. Numbered rows start at the top of each area as the viewer is positioned to read the bricks. Within each numbered row, Brick 1 is on the left. Count to the right in sequence for the other brick’s numbers.

The second part of this locator matrix comprises two alphabetized tables. The first shows the names of the “Lost in WW II” honorees as they appear on the stone insert, indicating their location in terms of Area, Row, and Column. The second table shows the names of the other honorees and indicates their brick’s location in terms of Area, Row, Brick (#), (and Service Branch). For example, Doug Phillips’ brick location is “B, 1, 2, A.” The A is for Army. Other Service Branches abbreviations are: N for Navy, M for Marines, AF for Air Force, CG for Coast Guard, and MM for Merchant Marine.

We hope that this Locator Matrix will be of assistance to all those who search ... in remembrance.

In addition to honoring all who served, there are 2,278 specific Heroes/Heroines remembered at this WWII Memorial!

Acknowledgements

This document was designed, developed, and produced for the benefit of all those who may come to visit the City of Flora's Library Park WW II Memorial. It will be available in paper copies at City Hall, the Library, the American Legion, the VFW, the Hometown Journal, the Clay County Advocate Press, the Clay County Republican, and the Frank & Bright Funeral Home. As well, electronic (and printable) versions will be available on several Web sites including those of the City of Flora, the Flora Public Library, radio station WNOI (under "Local Links"), and the Frank & Bright Funeral Home.

The WW II Memorial Honoree Locator Matrix was accomplished as a civic-duty project conducted by Robert Medley Gatewood and Donna Jean McDaniel; ably supported by members of the local Boy Scouts of America Troop 282, led by Scout Master George Dickinson.

Should any user have ideas for improving this document, please contact Mr. Gatewood via an input to the Librarian at the Flora Public Library.

Special thanks to Doug (recently deceased) and Jan Phillips, Charles "Wheezer" Briscoe, and Harold "Hack" Wilson for dreaming of ... and then realizing the City of Flora's Library Park WW II Memorial. It is indeed a fitting tribute to those "local area" uniformed personnel who served America so well in that desperate 20th Century defense of freedom. And always remember that, as is inscribed on the Memorial's Central Monument ... "Freedom Isn't Free!"

Note: An Audio CD of the November 11, 2005 dedication ceremony is available at the Library. This CD was recorded by and is provided courtesy of WNOI Radio.
